

Privacy and Network Security

Today's business environment moves at a rapid pace and is increasingly reliant on technology, social media and the internet to manage costs and maintain market advantage. This reliance brings with it emerging exposures that could result in lost revenue, business down time and a host of unforeseen costs.

Traditional insurance policies deal with your visible losses such as fire or theft. It is just as important today to ensure adequate coverage for intangible losses related to the information technology infrastructure of your business. Does your property policy have adequate provisions for loss of data and business interruption in the event of disruption to your website?

- Do you use email in the course of your business?
- Do you have a network of computers within your organization?
- Do you maintain confidential customer data?

Whether you are in retail, manufacturing, the hospitality sector, or an office, you may be subject in a breach to your IT system or the threat of cyber extortion.

In 2014, 700 million records were compromised resulting in estimated financial loss of $400 million. This alone shows the verifiable importance of managing data breach risks.*

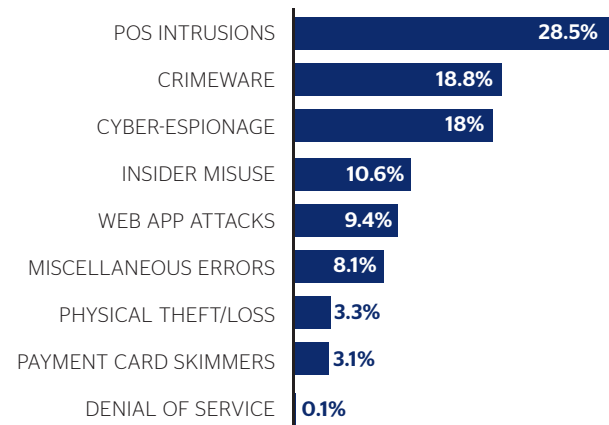

QBE has designed a tailored privacy and network security solution to meet the needs of clients and to help protect their business from a range of emerging exposures.

Coverage is included for:

- Privacy and network security liability
- Media liability
- Data breach notification costs
- Information and communication asset rectification costs
- Regulatory defense and penalty costs
- Public relations costs
- Forensics costs
- Credit monitoring costs
- Cyber business interruption
- Cyber extortion

Frequency of incident classification patterns with confirmed data breaches*
